

NORTHWESTERN
UNIVERSITY

The Roxelyn & Richard Pepper
Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders

"FRIDAYS AT NOON" TALKS

INGO TITZE, PhD

National Center for Voice and Speech
University of Iowa

"Voice Research: Where is the Excitement and What is the Benefit?"

Voice research in the 21st century has embraced nonlinear dynamics to describe vocal fold vibration, cell and tissue engineering principles to guide vocal fold repair, and interactive systems theory to describe laryngeal control. As a result, voice therapy is taking new directions, especially with regard to efficiency and economy of diagnosis and behavioral treatment.

OCTOBER 2, 2009

Room 3-417 ♦ Frances Searle Building
Evanston Campus